

The Ulla Bondeson Fund Research seminar – Socialhögskolan, Lunds Universitet November 10-11, 2022

Invitation

Ulla Bondeson was an active and very productive Scandinavian criminologist for more than 40 years. She was a professor in sociology at the University of Lund and later she became professor in criminology at the University of Copenhagen. During her long active career, Ulla Bondeson became an important and respected person in the international criminological society. She held numerous important positions and received many honours such as the Sellin-Glueck Award of the ASC in 1995, and she became a Knight of the Dannebrog (the Danish flag), which was conferred by the Queen of Denmark in 2006.

David P. Farrington and Lawrence W. Sherman wrote about Ulla Bondeson in their obituary: Ulla Bondeson was a remarkable and very distinguished pioneering criminologist. Ulla was extremely concerned about the damaging effects of imprisonment. And further: She was a highly intelligent, multilingual and very cultured person who also had a hearty laugh and a great sense of fun.

After her death in 2009, Ulla Bondeson's personal archive and library were donated to the University of Lund and her personal assets were established as a fund for Nordic criminological research.

Each year the board of the Ulla Bondeson Fund arranges a research-seminar in order to stimulate and support Nordic research in legal sociology and criminology.

It is an honour to invite you to the research seminar of 2022. The seminar will be held in the spirit of Ulla Bondeson under the heading:

Can the damaging effects of imprisonment be prevented?

The main topics to be discussed will be:

- Attempts to prevent new crime during prison time and after
- Challenges and ambitions in the probation sector (kriminalforsorg i frihed)
- The time after imprisonment

Keynote speakers:

Fergus McNeill, Professor of Criminology and Social Work, University of Glasgow:
Reforming Rehabilitation

Nicola Carr, Professor, School of Sociology and Social Policy, University of Nottingham:
Probation and Community Sanctions in Europe

Robin Gålnander, lecturer at the Department of Criminology, Stockholm University, Sweden, PhD:
Countering loneliness and liminality on the road to reform

Asbjørn Storgaard, PhD-student at Lund University – Ulla Bondeson Scholar:
Beyond responsabilization: On subtle aspects of building democratic capacity among parolees in Danish rehabilitative probation service

Plenary presentations will alternate with parallel sessions.

Presentations for parallel sessions:

If you want to give a presentation, please send an abstract of 150-250 words before September 15 to kontakt@ullavbondesonfond.dk. We will inform you no later than October 1 whether your abstract is accepted for a presentation.

Registration for participation in the seminar (without presentation):

Please send an email to kontakt@ullavbondesonfond.dk no later than October 1, 2022 with your name, workplace and email address. You will receive further information soon after October 1.

There is no participation fee. A sandwich will be served at lunchtime on both days. Other expenses should be covered by other sources than the Ulla Bondeson Fund.

Nordic PhD students: Please see additional information at NSfKs website about the Nordic PhD meeting that will take place before the seminar.

The programme starts at lunch time on November 10 and ends at lunch time November 11, 2022.

The history of donations from the Ulla Bondeson Fund can be seen on <http://ullavbondesonfond.dk>